

There has been a general snow storm throughout the Northwest.

Thus far fourteen bodies have been discovered in the Brooklyn ruins.

Ex-President ARTHUR's friends are urging him to make the race for Governor of New York.

Captain BLACKBURN expects to enter upon the duties of the office of Collector about the 1st of June.

It is considered probable that this year's crops in Ohio will be the most disastrous failure for ten years.

Ex-Senator B. K. BRUCE, Register of the Treasury, has tendered his resignation. It is reported that his resignation was asked for.

The New Orleans Daily Item thinks it probable the temperance question will assume a commanding influence at the next general election. It says the prohibition sentiment is strong in a number of parishes, and may lead to the severance of present party ties.

PAUL BOYNTON, the swimmer, and some reporters gave the British man-of-war Garnet a good scare by rowing out to see how near Paul could get without being discovered. The Garnet's crew discovered them and caught them, but not until Boynton had placed an empty torpedo against the vessel. They were finally released.

Says the Covington Commonwealth: Stoll, Collector of Internal Revenue at Lexington, Ky., was removed for cause. The Commercial Gazette wants to know what the cause is. Last October Stoll sent nearly his entire force—clerks, gaugers, storekeepers, etc.—to Cincinnati to take part in the election there. Some of these Kentucky Federal officials, in clear violation of law, acted as Deputy Marshals. Good cause, everybody but partisan Republicans will say.

When the colossal figure of "Liberty Enlightening the World" shall have been set up in the New York Harbor, our country will have, among its many other distinctions, the honor of possessing the largest statue in the world. Some idea of its immense proportions may be obtained from the following illustrations: Forty persons have found standing room in the head. A six-foot man standing on the level of the lips only reached the eyebrow. It has been eight years in construction and weighs 440,000 pounds, of which 176,000 pounds are copper and the rest wrought iron.

By the reduction of the debt $5,000,000 during the months of April we have an indication that the Government can continue to extinguish its obligations as rapidly as is required by law. The falling off of the revenue during the fiscal year has been unusually heavy, probably more than $20,000,000, but the Treasury has still ample resources to meet all demands, keep $100,000,000 on hand as a reserve, and pay the public debt as rapidly as is necessary. It can even do better, it is thought, as soon as the projected system of rigid economy can be applied by the incumbent administration of national affairs.

VICE PRESIDENT HENDRICKS is credited with saying: "The situation in which the Democratic party finds itself with the advent of this administration, is exceptional, and the expectations of reward for party service that have been realized four or eight years ago can not be gratified now. The sentiment of the country seems favorable to the policy that has been adopted by Mr. Cleveland and it seems doubtful that any other could be followed for the future good of the party. It meets with the accord of the wisest counsellors in the Democratic party, and in time the great masses of the party will adopt a similar view."

I am indeed glad to find an advocate of the new method of teaching spelling in "X." and not less glad that the example pupils of a private school. Whatever is rational common sense and true in educational methods is Normal, and I care not whether it was acquired in a professional school or in the great school of experience—whether practical in public school or a private—it is of equal value to the pupil, and when introduced in one school it is approved with its just need of praise in all.

Jim Vandyle, who lives on Onion Creek, tied his pony to a fence railing on Austin avenue. The owner of the premises came up to him and said: "You low-legged, neck-tied fraud, if you don't untie that horse I'll fan the air with your ungainly carcass." "You must excuse me, sir," responded Vandyle, "but I am a stranger and did not know there would be any objections." "You adulate outcast, don't you suppose I know that you are a stranger, you loathsome ass. That's why I talk politely to you, you goggle-eyed idiot. That's why I don't talk rough to you, you son of a gun. If you lived here in town I'd give you a piece of my mind. I'd talk plain to you, you bet I would."

Defects of Iowa's Prohibition Law. CHAS. A. BEE, May 9.—The anti-prohibitionists claim to have discovered a fatal defect in the present Iowa prohibitory law. In cases tried at Carroll, asking an injunction to restrain the saloon keepers from conducting business, attorneys for the defense set up the claim that there was no record of the passage of the law by the journals of the lower house of the legislature. It was on this same point the supreme court of the state decided the constitutional amendment, the immediate predecessor of the present law, null and void. Prominent lawyers maintain that the supreme court has also passed on this point. The law involved. The only point remaining to be settled is one of fact. Should the present law be declared void there is no prospect of the next legislature re-enacting it.

Dynamite's Deadly Work. LEBANON, Pa., May 9.—A frightful premature explosion of dynamite took place at the Cronwell ore banks several miles from this place, by which six men were badly torn and mangled, and it is feared that at least three cannot survive. The men were engaged in blasting out iron ore and loading it on cars. A number of holes had been drilled and filled with cartridges. The men were then told to hurry away, but before they had got a sufficient distance the dynamite was discharged with terrific force.

A "Deadly" Shot. CHICAGO, May 9.—R. A. Leggo and H. A. Parker, two dentists, while on a spree, met "Deadly" Morris, a well known tough, in Tam Curley's saloon at 121 Fourth avenue. In a dispute between them, Leggo drew a revolver and fired two shots, one ball taking effect in Morris' chest. He was taken to the county hospital where it was thought by the physician that the wound would prove fatal. Leggo was remanded without bail.

The Week's Failures. NEW YORK, May 9.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., number for the United States 225, and for Canada 23, or a total of 248, as compared with 239 last week, and 240 the week previous to the last. The failures in the southern and Pacific states are unusually heavy. In the other sections particularly in the Western states, they are below the average.

She Had Confidence.

Mrs. H. C. Harnberger, Manor Hill, Huntington County, Pa., writes: "Dr. S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O. I have been afflicted for three years, caused by over-work too soon after confinement. My kidneys became seriously affected; could not retain my urine day nor night. It was high colored, thick and bloody. My months had left altogether for fourteen months, during which time I was confined to my bed with a beating in right ovaries. The discharge from the womb was so offensive no one could stay in the room. The urine continued bloody, with pain in voiding it, and when in bed would pass from me in my sleep. I have had three doctors attending me regularly, one for four months, one of the others one whole summer, and the third all winter. We had two others in consultation with them, and used twenty bottles of different kinds of patent medicines, all to no good. I then got a bottle of PARUA, and before I had three-fourths of the bottle taken I quit wetting the bed and could retain the urine sufficient to attend church, which I had not done for three years, and my months came back as natural as ever indeed. I considered myself a well woman again. Since that time I have had pneumonia. My confidence in PARUA was so great that I did not send for a doctor. I followed the directions in your 'Mills of Life' and am over it, as well as can be expected of one so delicate as I have been. Others in my neighborhood had the same disease, and among them were strong men, and had the best physicians attending them. I sailed through in safety on PARUA and MANALIN. I sincerely believe, and would say to all the afflicted in the wide world, that PARUA and MANALIN are the only two medicines that any one needs in any disease, if used as directed in your book entitled 'The Mills of Life'."

J. E. Fleming, publisher of the New Dominion, Morgantown, W. Va., writes: "Some months since, I received some of your medicine in exchange for advertising. My wife has taken five bottles of it, and has derived great benefit from it."

Mr. M. C. Pershing, Bradenton, Pa., writes: "My wife has been using PARUA for some time for weak lungs and liver and kidney complaint, and thinks it is doing her great good. She used only one bottle as yet. Please send your book on the 'Mills of Life,' as we can't get any from our druggist."

Mr. J. D. Denny, Mt. Vernon, O., writes: "We have a large sale in PARUA. It gives satisfaction."

AGRICULTURE ABROAD.

SOME HINDRANCES TO FARMING IN THE OLD WORLD

Calculated to Make American Crop Raisers Congratulate Themselves—Interesting Reports from Our Watchful Foreign Consuls.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Consul General Merritt at London writes the state department at Washington that although 1884 recalled the last great agricultural year in England, 1874, by reason of auspicious weather and large yields, prices dropped off fully twenty-five per cent, and farmers found themselves coming out of an exceptionally good year with a loss. "The result," says Mr. Merritt, "that the crisis is more severe now than ever, and all remedies that have been advanced, save that of a large reduction of rents, may be dismissed as futile. Farming land is almost everywhere, and tenant farmers are throwing up their leases as fast as their terms expire."

Consul Shaw at Manchester has an explanation for the depressed condition of agriculture in England. Form a careful study of the methods pursued there he writes: "I am fully satisfied that farm expenses are more than 100 per cent. dearer here than they are in America, notwithstanding the much higher wages paid with us." He gives a couple of illustrations which came under his observation. The hay in a field of ten acres was being gathered, and this was the outfit: "Two horses attached to a cart, a plow, a boy to lead the horses, one man to pitch up the hay, two men to load with their hands, a boy to rake after; and there were three sets of work people after this fashion in this one field." In America, with one man to load and drive his span of horses, one man to pitch on the hay, a horse-fork to unload, Mr. Shaw says, "more hay would be secured in one day than the three sets of workers were able to manage." In a wheat field he saw a reaper at work with "six men, two women and three boys," doing the work which a self-blinder and two men would accomplish in the states. "An English settler in the United States," concludes Mr. Shaw, "told me not long ago that he had learned to do twice as much in a day as he used to accomplish in England, and he really believed he could go back to England and make money farming as the result of his improved information."

Consul Roosevelt at Bordeaux reports that the returns on the wine crop of France for 1884 show a total yield of 918,810,000 gallons, a decrease of 55,000,000 gallons, as compared with the previous year. In twelve months past the ravages of phylloxera have caused the robbing up of 150,000 acres of vineyards. The wine of 1884 is noted for a fine flavor, good body and dark color.

"Much complaint," writes Consul General Brewer in Germany, "is made by those engaged in agricultural pursuits at the low prices, and they are demanding further protection by a higher duty on imports of agricultural productions, claiming that it is impossible for them to compete with the farmers of America, Russia, etc." There is much depression of the beet-sugar industry because of the system of taxing the produce of the beet and paying a bounty to the exporter of the sugar.

Although they had unusually fine crops, the Cyprian farmers are in a bad way, Consul Robeson reports. A new system of taxation called Fokhous, has been adopted, and it is even less satisfactory than the old tithe collecting plan. The Turks used to take ten per cent of the amount produced by the Syrian farmer. Instead of that, a fixed tax for five years has been levied which does not vary for the crop. The tax is based on the expectation of four good years and one bad year. "The farmer will not be able to rent his lands, as the tenant, who has to pay the fixed tax, can not afford to pay heavy interest on money borrowed, and run the risk of the four-to-one chances of good crops. Many of the agricultural class would leave the country, if permitted to do so, as their condition grows worse annually."

Consul Farman at Bombay, tells of the failure to introduce improved agricultural machinery of American manufacture into India. The native Zemindars do not take kindly to it. Several consignments of plows, planters and reapers were received, but had to be reshipped to Australia, so great was the prejudice against their use.

Consul General Spencer, at Melbourne, notes the great change which has taken place in Australia: "For many years the colonies were partially dependent upon external sources of supply for their breadstuffs and large shipments of wheat were received year after year from Chili and California. A vast extent of well-grassed pastoral country invited the early settlers to bestow their attention exclusively upon the breeding and grazing of sheep and cattle, and upon the production of wool. The climate was found to be peculiarly propitious to this industry. Neither artificial food nor shelter was required at any period of the year. Whole blocks of country, covering hundreds of square miles, were leased to pastoral tenants at an almost nominal rate. These lessees, or squatters, as they were generally called, were averse to agricultural settlement. They used their political influence to prevent the land from being thrown open to tillage. As the urban population increased in numbers, and therefore in power, it succeeded in defeating the pastoral elements, and liberal land laws were passed, giving every reasonable facility for the acquisition of freehold farms. The result has been a remarkable expansion of agricultural industry, so that some of the colonies which formerly drew large quantities of wheat from the Pacific coast are now exporting to Europe."

Washington Briefs.
The R. E. Lee veterans of Virginia called upon the president and were received by him in the east parlor, after which the members left for their respective homes.

The court of inquiry appointed by Rear Admiral Jonett to examine into the actions of Commander Kane during the Panama troubles has fully vindicated that officer. The president has declined an invitation to visit Atlanta next month.

Another Englishman in New York Bay.
New York, May 9.—The arrival of the corvette Canada, in the lower bay has created considerable discussion. The storm and foggy weather prevented the Canada from leaving her present anchorage, but as soon as the weather cleared she moved up and located near the Garret. Consul General Baker said that the arrival of the Canada had no particular significance. The Russian ship Strouk is still at anchor in the North river, and may stay ten days longer; possibly a month.
